

Two truths and a lie

This is a game of invention, and discovering fact from fiction. Can you figure out which of the three things someone tells you about themselves is really a lie?

1. Everyone playing takes a few minutes to think of two true facts about themselves, and one believable lie. You can make the facts as interesting or as boring as you like! Write them down so you don't forget them.

2. Take it in turns to read out your three statements. Other people can ask you a few questions to see if they can work out what's true.

1. I had fish fingers for dinner last night

2. I used to live in Scotland

3. I have a pet hamster

3. The other people guess which of the three they think is a lie. Did they get it right? Swap over until everyone has had a turn.